BURTON E. NELSON

President

YOU, OF the Class of '45, began work with us about the time of the dastardly crime of Pearl Harbor. Your labors have brought you to graduation with a creditable record of work done. You have no thought, however, that your labors have ended. No man is more unhappy than he who has nothing to do. Loafing is the last thing a sane person wishes for. Our happiness depends upon a correct attitude toward work.

No man works happily who works primarily for the dollars he receives. Working to win the war has far greater value than the cash return. The big return our fighters get and the solace the men who produce the implements of war get are freedom from aggression, from brute force, from slavery and persecution. Victory brings to them their reward. Financial compensation, however necessary, is a minor consideration.

Graduation does not indicate complete preparation for the work you will now undertake. Further preparation means greater efficiency. The results of your services will be reflected in greater national economy and stability. The thought that you are in some small degree helping to eliminate selfishness in business relations, injustice in racial distinctions, prejudices in religious differences should be a stimulating thought to you.

More than ever before, a study of national and international political and economic conditions justifies the conviction that universal education is essential to the maintenance of democratic institutions. A recognizable corollary establishes the self-evident fact that out of an educated public must come trained statesmen to supplant the practical politicians motivated largely by selfish interests. Here rests the responsibility of the college to the state and nation and your responsibility as a teacher to the people with whom you work. The initiation of this program is the immediate charge placed upon the colleges of America, placed upon you as a teacher of those who must assume heavier responsibilities in the creation of better citizenship.

Go on with your studies. Strive to love and to live with people in comfortable relationships and consider that most of your pay comes from the consciousness of the fact that you have done your part in building the greatest nation with the cleanest record the world has ever known.

BURTON E. NELSON,
President

C. A. BOWMAN
Dean of Industrial Education
Director of Summer School

THE TOWER, through its annual record of each year's activities at Stout, has pictured and described the development of a unique and significant college. In this, another war-time year, The Stout Institute continues to grow as a contributor to the war effort. The number of stars on the service flag grows almost day by day. Through numerous channels, including many visits by graduates and former students in service, we learn of the many types and the wide spread of activities. The college is proud indeed of this record.

As we concentrate on winning the war, we are also looking ahead to the service we are to render in the development of a nation geared to and prepared for a lasting peace. The number of students enrolled this year has begun the growth which will bring the return to capacity attendance. Forward-looking adjustments in opportunities at Stout are developing steadily. Returning members from the armed services are giving added significance to the statement which greets all entering students, "When a student enrolls in The Stout Institute he becomes a partner in the enterprise."

Educators trained at Stout will have responsibilities in the coming years which will call for their very best in insight, interpretation, and performance. The expanding future will bring further emphasis on the fact that education is continuous — the curriculum never is in final form. The problems ahead are challenging. We will give our best in educational service.

Clyde A. Bowman

RUTH E. MICHAELS
Dean of Home Economics
Dean of Women

TO THOSE privileged to work in the field of Home Economics education there is real assurance and incentive in the opinions expressed by many, that homes will continue to be important in our democratic society even though much uncertainty about other social institutions and activities seems to be a part of today's living. To meet the changing conditions that will constantly affect these homes, this particular field of education should continue to improve its offerings and achieve even greater recognition than it has in the past. The goal its leaders have established, that of bettering ways of living for thirty million homes, will test its potential powers and should be a challenge to every college graduate who has completed her major in this field.

CLASSES

SENIORS

WE ARE leaving college, which seemed very strange to us when we were freshmen, for the business and professional world. We carry with us many delightful memories of college days—dinner dances, picnics, school work, and friends. If you will look back, you will realize how unusual the four years have been. They opened in the usual pattern: high school students coming away from home for the first time. There were football games, fraternity dances, and classes in which there were as many men as women. Then came the war. Some of our classmates left immediately, but more joined the reserves, and life continued more or less as usual. By the time we were juniors, all but one of the men had entered some branch of the services, and the other classes had losses similar to those of our third year group. That year we moved in a daze, not knowing just how to handle the whole situation. But this year, we found our bearings. The girls took over SSA and all the class offices. Joan Quilling, as president, Dorothy Norenberg, as treasurer, and Carol Ann Milnes, as vice-president, represented us in SSA offices while Florine Lindow was our class prexy. Phyllis Knowles and Eunice Riebe were our representatives to the Student Government Council. In fact, our class carried on very successfully!

JUNIORS

HOMECOMING found the Junior Class taking charge of the homecoming picnic, contributing members to the annual homecoming play and to the homecoming queen's court, and engaging in the many homecoming activities. We bubbled with Christmas spirit at the Christmas dance for which we had arranged the gay decorations. We are sorry that we could not offer a Junior Prom this year, but you know the situation . . . ! This year again found many of our fellow classmates still in the service, but we're doing our best to keep the school buzzing with dances and other seasonal activities until they can join us again at Stout.

CHOW LINE

IN THE Stout Institute students study the customary courses in general subjects; they also acquire definitely useful skills. Graduating, they go to positions in elementary and secondary schools, in high schools, colleges, and vocational schools.

During the college year The Stout Institute offers courses which lead to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Home Economics and Industrial Education. During the summer session, Stout offers the M. S. degree in Industrial Education, Vocational Education, and Home Economics. Courses for both graduates and undergraduates are offered during the summer sessions. The Stout Institute gives teachers, supervisors, and executives an opportunity to prepare for the increased responsibilities in practical arts in general education.

NEW WARDROBES IN THE MAKING

MRS. PROUDLOCK
DEMONSTRATES

THE CURRICULUM in the Division of Home Economics has been developed with the idea that a student gains most from education through self-activity in the study of problems in relation to family and community living.

Classes in food study, food preparation, and dietetics are correlated with the work in other classes such as biology, physiology, and chemistry. Basically the objectives of the foods and nutrition department are the planning, preparation, and serving of nutritious food in an appetizing manner.

CRAFTSMEN THREE

LIFE ON A SMALL SCALE!

FOR THE graduates of Stout who have a major in food and nutrition, some of the professional fields are hospital dietetics, institutional management, commercial demonstration work, and teaching. Today at The Stout Institute every home economics student receives basic training for professional fields.

Home Economics students are required to take home management which provides the opportunity for study of the management of time, energy, money, and home equipment through the students' six weeks' residence in the home management house. Child Development provides actual experience in work with pre-school children.

WHO SAID THERE WAS A RUBBER SHORTAGE?

WE DO STUDY!

ART COURSES are correlated with the other home economics work, too. Principles of art are taught in their relation to the home and home furnishings. Advanced art work is offered in classes in creative art, crafts, sketch, art history, and in various courses in design. Clothing is begun in a study of clothing selection and construction. Other work in clothing includes applied dress design, advanced dress design, textiles, clothing economics, and clothing problems.

IT'S A HARD JOB!

PUTTING IT ON PAPER!

THE DIVISION of Industrial Education offers variety to students and leads graduates into industrial and technical positions in schools throughout the country. The college also helps the boys in armed service training. From the very beginning of college, wood-working courses have been included in the curriculum.

Drawing has been a part of Stout since the school's conception, whereas printing, its related art, has been taught only since 1906. The future trend in graphic arts is to correlate the printing and drawing courses, thereby facilitating the application of the principles of layout and design, color theory, and bindery learned in one field of graphic arts to the other field.

CATALOGUE GOES TO PRESS!

McKINNEY AT THE FORGE

THE PRESENT emergency has shown the vital importance of metalwork in our modern civilization. The plan of equipment, the organization, and the operation of the general metals shop produce a flexibility which makes it possible to keep the work up to date. New materials, new processes, new hand and machine tools, and new combinations of these will constantly come into the working opportunities for students in this shop.

In the course in carpentry, the students construct houses which are moved to vacant lots. Some of the well known houses in Menomonie were constructed in the carpentry shop of the college.

Electricity and radio, brick laying and concrete building construction are also included in the curriculum of industrial education.

AS SOPHOMORES we came back to Stout thinking of freshman days and looking forward to being upper classmen. We are the smallest class in school. This meant plenty of work for homecoming. We decorated the gym for the big dance with blue and white streamers covering the ceiling like a canopy. Joyce Krieb took charge of decorating and was helped at every twist of a streamer by Bill Masek. Halfway through decorating, we ran out of streamers. A hurried trip to the drug store saved the day. Pat Telford, a sophomore, was queen of homecoming.

At Christmas time the annual Yule Kaffee Lag was a complete success.

The only formal event of the year at the college was held by the women at our sophomore dorm, Tainter Hall, last November. In the dimly lighted dining room twenty-two women and their escorts danced to victrola music of all the latest bands.

SURE, we were just another bunch of green frosh when the year started. Our first days at Stout were a hazy confusion of "So this is the Annex!" surprise at first seeing the campus, and relief at finding that all the other kids were just as new and green, but really swell once we knew them! But after we got used to dorm life, and to college in general, we felt definitely part of the school.

What would homecoming have been without the bonfire which we built and guarded those cold nights? That job was taken care of mostly by our men (except for the hot coffee and doughnuts). Naturally we missed them later in the year as, one by one, "Sam got 'em."

In spite of the man shortage, though, there was not shortage of talent among us, as the freshman-sponsored floor show at the Christmas dance proved. And our assembly program really was "hot stuff".

Of course, it wasn't all extra-curricular — those cats dissected in phys or the rats cared for in nutrition won't soon be forgotten. And neither will the psych, the math, the grammar, or the Green Tea, or any of the parties, or all the other memories of our freshman year.

SOCIETIES

INTERSOCIETY COUNCIL

THE PRESIDENTS, the secretaries, and the advisers of each of the four women's social organizations comprise the membership of the Intersociety Council. The group meets with Dean Michaels to discuss the common problems of the societies. This year, besides planning the Intersociety tea, the council made further revision of the rushing rules. Jean Hagemann, president of Pallas Athene, was Intersociety chairman, and Bernice Blank, Philomathean secretary, was Intersociety secretary-treasurer.

PALLAS ATHENE

THE P. A.'s have had a busy year. In addition to our usual social events, we gave a shower for Joyce Gullickson, a P. A. who was married to Rip Kriebe at Christmas time. Several members also attended the wedding.

Our social year began with the formal initiation service at the La Pointe home. Each new member will long remember this impressive ceremony. A mid-winter hike to Radke's, followed by a hot snack and games, had marked the opening of the P. A. rushing season. The whole student body anticipates our annual roller-skating party held at the Armory. It's fun even for the greenest beginner. Have you seen those attractive yarn dogs or those little stuffed animals? P. A. products, no doubt. Each member makes some article to be sold at the annual Easter sale.

When spring comes, you'll see us enjoying hamburgers or hot-dogs at one of our favorite picnic spots near Menomonie.

The climax to the P. A. year is our trip to the Cities. This year we saw Helen Hayes in "Harriet". All is not work at Stout!

PHILOMATHEANS

FOR THE peppy Philos, this has been a busy year. Not only was it the twenty-fifth anniversary of their founding,—a year for special parties, but throughout the year the group carried on the usual round of activities.

First on the calendar was the Philo Phrolix, given for the benefit of the Red Cross, at which students danced in the brightly decorated gym. Also Philo-sponsored was the spooky Halloween tea. Delicious, spicy Russian tea was served in a genuine Halloween atmosphere.

Christmas brought the usual holiday parties before the Philos scattered for vacation. In March, the trip to the cities to see the play "Harriet" was another event on the calendar.

The rushing season brought many original ideas, including the breakfast pajama party at Wentlandt's. And, of course, the year wouldn't have been complete without the cottage party! Certainly the Philos are a friendly gang.

S. M. A.

THE SMA's have quite a reputation for tradition, originality, and black dresses. The highlight of our activities was a revival of Sadie Hawkins week. The valentine tea was as lovely as it ever is. The dance itself was held in the Home Ec corridor with the social room as Skunk Hollow and the elevator as Hairless Joe's and Lonesome Polecat's cave where Kick-a-poo juice was sold. None of us would think of missing the cottage party despite mice, cold, stoves that won't cook, and people who insist upon before-breakfast dips in the lake. In those few days together, almost anything can happen,

We have done more as a group this year—bridge and knitting parties (we finished our afghan for the Red Cross) and eating together on Sunday nights. With Alice Finger as president, and Neva Harmeling to take her place while she was practice teaching, we had a busy year. We were all represented in school activities: Joan Quilling was SSA president and Pat Telford with three other SMA's ruled the Homecoming court. Most of us worked harder than usual, but we had more fun than usual.

HYPERIAN

ACTIVITIES plus! Yes, even in wartime the Hyperians lead a social life. Our first event of the year was a "Back-to-School" reunion at the Engobretson cottage on Sand Lake. The pledges really know how to cook, don't they? The Norths took over for "Stew" and added to the week-end's excitement by taking the girls for a hayride.

The next event on our social calendar was our formal initiation and luncheon at La Corte. We took in seven new members. The talk of the school was our Negro assembly program, "Rhapsody in Black". We borrowed "Available", the K.F.S. proxy for a ride as a "bookender". Did I say aniter or sater? Anyway, Audrey got her derby!

One of our all-school projects was the traditional tea, "The Old Heidelberg Inn". To boost our financial status, we sold magazines, Christmas cards, and tickets for a movie.

We contributed to the war effort by sponsoring the annual Red Cross Drive at school. Each member also made a Navy overseas kit.

We are happy to have two of our members chosen for "Who's Who among Students in American Universities and Colleges".

ORGANIZATIONS

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

THE HOME Economics Club Council is composed of a president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, program chairman, social chairman, and president-elect. The council represents the members of the four classes, and plans the activities for the Home Economics Club. The new council begins its work in the spring of the year at the time of the Senior Breakfast, when it works with the old council.

The program chairman, with the aid of the council, plans the monthly meetings of the Home Economics Club. The social chairman, usually with the aid of the club and council members plans the social affairs. The social activities are the Corridor Dance given for the new students, the teas presented at Christmas time by the Sophomore Class and in March by the Freshman Class, the inter-dormitory party presented by the three dormitories, and the style show presented by the girls taking courses in clothing.

In fact, the council guides and controls the work of the Home Economics Club. This year the members were: Lila Danielson, president; Barbara Heimert, vice-president; Ruth TeBeest, secretary; Patricia McKown, treasurer; Ruth Gilgenbach, president-elect and program chairman; and Patricia O'Connor, social chairman. Their adviser was Dean Michaels.

This year, two representatives from this council attended a meeting of Province Eight to which the club belongs. Patricia O'Connor gained the presidency of the Province; with the presidency came the honor of having the Province meeting at Stout next year. Next year's council will make arrangements for the meeting.

W. A. A.

WE LIVELY lassies may play a mean hand of bridge, and knit plenty of sweaters, but you're just as likely to find us batting a volleyball around the gym or hiking out to Paradise Valley. In the summer we swim, and in the winter we skate, for plenty of activity points are necessary for those official emblems. And in-between seasons, you may find us engaged in almost any sport!

W.A.A.-sponsored sports tournaments run 'round the school year, and teams from all organizations competed in them. Also a W.A.A. annual event is the Water Carnival — but another wartime shortage, that of materials, resulted in its being called off this year, with an all-school Sports Night taking its place. Yes, from the first overnight hike out to the Country Club, to the last days of school, this year really was an enjoyable one for the W.A.A.

Y. W. C. A.

ONE OF the most active organizations at Stuart is the Y.W.C.A., as the worthwhile activities and programs of the year show.

The new students' first contact with the Y.W. was through the Big and Little Sister program, with its get-acquainted tea in September and a party between members.

The September Caricature Sale was the first of the activities scheduled for the year. Special services were held at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter. Members enjoyed the initiation party and the annual banquet, while everyone enjoyed the Y.W. all-school party.

Not a small part of the Y.W.C.A.'s program for the year was helping others less fortunate. Generous Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets were filled and distributed, and much time was spent in making scrapbooks and stuffed toys for orphanages. Perhaps one of the Y.W.C.A.'s most important contributions was the sponsorship of the World Student Service Fund, to aid Americans in prison camps and destitute college students of other nations whose studies have been interrupted by the war. Carrying on with its usual ideals of fellowship and service, the Stuart Y.W.C.A. can be proud of its record of accomplishments during the past year.

ALPHA Psi Omega has had a busy and eventful year. You will remember our all girl play, Brief Music, a picture of dormitory life which we presented at homecoming.

In October, the prospective members of our group were pledged. Two weeks later, they were initiated in the auditorium and entertained at dinner at Cafe LaCorte. In December, the twenty-two members and Miss Erickson went to St. Paul to see Paul Robson in Othello.

At the opening of the second semester, Miss Erickson, adviser of Alpha Psi, left to study at the University of Wisconsin. We then had to carry on without her help. At the January meeting for the Freshmen, the old members put on demonstrations of different phases of dramatic arts. In order, also, that the new members have a means of earning points for eligibility, we conducted classes in costuming, makeup, and lighting. The group also put on several short plays.

Instead of the spring play, which was omitted because our director was away, we sponsored a program presented by Maude Scheerer. Miss Scheerer gave a dramatic reading, The Voice of the Turtle.

K. F. S.

WE BOAST of being the best men's social organization on the campus! We really have "gone to town" this year in the activities we have sponsored! Stout is credited with selling more war stamps and bonds than any other college in the state. Here at Stout these stamp sales were sponsored by the "Kappa Phi's".

During this school year one of the first social affairs was the Halloween dance at the Country Club. During the second semester initiation week, we gave a "Hell-Week Hop" in the cafeteria, featuring Bud Worden's Campus Combo. Even the advertising was unique. Not many students missed seeing the huge sign posted above the door of the cafeteria.

No K.F.S. man can forget the initiation week serenading, the midnight meetings at Braker Hall, and the Hawaiians' departure. K.F.S.—Knowledge, Friendship, Society. Hats off to the K.F.S.

PHI UPSILON OMICRON

ON HOMECOMING Saturday, excitement prevailed, when ten new members were initiated into Phi U. With the ceremony, a busy year began for Phi Upsilon Omicron, national professional fraternity for home economists. Editing a semi-annual newsletter, holding professional meetings, and sending out the opaque projector slides and the textile boxes to home economics teachers in the state was the chief professional work of the group. In the spring of the year, Phi U sponsored a National Home Economics Association membership drive for Senior women. The annual all-school Phi U tea was also held in the spring. Phi U, and its meaning, becomes a cherished memory to alumnae who recall their four years at Stout.

SCHOLARSHIPS

EACH spring, a day is set aside at Stout to honor outstanding students. It has been the custom to honor four women and four men from the Sophomore and Junior classes by awarding them the Eichelberger scholarship. In 1944, however, because of the small enrollment of men, only one man was so honored. To earn the Eichelberger award a student must evidence high scholarship, a good professional attitude, ability, and be of excellent character. A new rule specifies that no person may receive the Eichelberger award more than once during his college career; consequently, more students may receive the honor as well as the financial help given by the scholarships. In May, 1944, the following people received the awards: Mary Lubs, Dorothy Schoenwald, Mary Huntzicker, Marjorie Gilles, and Kiyoshi Minami.

ORGANIZATIONS INACTIVE IN 1944-1945

THIS YEAR 1944-1945 finds The Stout Institute without an F. O. B., an Epsilon Pi Tau, a Stout Typographical Society, an Arts and Crafts group, and an "S" Club. We do miss these organizations, but we will carry on without them for the duration. Although these societies and clubs are not represented at Stout this year, we talk about them. Their return to activity on the campus will be an occasion for a college celebration.

SYMPHONIC SINGERS

NOWHERE in school did the "man shortage" appear more drastic this year than in the Symphonic Singers! But Mr. Cooke, with the aid of a handful of male voices, and with several pinch-hitting women tenors, managed as usual to turn out a top-ranking choir.

With the glowing candles and the Christmas music, the annual Christmas concert was both beautiful and impressive. At the concert this year an award was presented to the Symphonic Singers by the Music War Council of America, in recognition of the group's service, through music, to the war effort.

Although the war made the annual concert tour plans uncertain, the Stout choir carried on with its usual high standards, looking forward to a bigger and better group after victory.

BAND

THE BAND has kept up the good record of the past with an equally good record this year. For a change, it was a strictly co-ed band, but the girls did well in all their performances. They played for the homecoming celebration in October. Another feather for their cap was added when they played at the assembly at which Vice-President Wallace spoke.

Under Mr. Cooke's always enthusiastic direction the thirty players prepared a musical assembly in March. It proved to be one of the best entertainments of the year.

WE OF The Tower bring you a yearbook that is, perhaps, different from the yearbooks of other years; but most things are different now. We had no winter formal, no football games; yet there was a homecoming with a bonfire, a Christmas concert, and the spirit of a Stout which we love and know we shall never forget. This book can not, nor does not need to, record all that has happened this past year — hikes to Paradise Valley, canoe trips to Wakanda, after-hour parties in the dorms — for in years to come, we shall need only to refer to it to make the picture a vivid whole.

We have tried to keep unbroken the record of Stout as given in our college yearbooks; we have also tried to perpetuate certain traditions of Stout which those who have left remember. We have not always found our job easy, but we of the staff hope that, along with us, you will look at this book today, and in years to come, and say, "That was a good year."

STOUTONIA STAFF

ANOTHER year of efficiently meeting the deadline can be chalked up for our hard-working Stoutonia staff. Of course, sometimes the reporters, rushing around school for their stories, barely beat that deadline, while copy-readers and typists often were pretty busy at the last minute. And the war-time shortage of linotype operators was another problem. But Mary Lub's efficient management as editor (and we can't forget Mr. Baker's advice) kept the whole staff working together—and the finished products we turned out were eagerly waited for on Friday mornings. Our service alumni all over the world waited for it, too, to judge by their contributions in the mail column. It was to them that the bright red and green Christmas edition was dedicated and sent. The Valentine edition also was brightly colored—and scented too! Being on the Stoutonia staff wasn't all work, as the annual theater party proved. Our Stout newspaper is an important part of the school. To the staff it may be a lot of work, but it's a lot of fun!

HOMEcoming

HOMEcoming began to take on some of the pre-war spirit when the freshmen were made to build the regular bonfire and spent their nights guarding it. The actual festivities began Friday night with the play, "Brief Music," from which we rushed to witness the lighting of the bonfire. It was a blaze good enough to inspire any team to victory, especially with the crowning of Pat Telford as homecoming queen.

Saturday was busy for everyone: The societies had individual parties. In the afternoon, the queen and her attendants were taken to Riverside, led by the band and followed by the students. We were not entirely at a loss for games, but this year it was kittenball played by mixed teams. No one knows just who won, but we do know that was the funniest game on record. Our picnic, which is becoming a tradition in itself, ended the afternoon celebrations. Next on the program was the dance. Everyone was there—alumni, faculty, students, and Bud Worden's orchestra. Things are looking up and we hope that next year it will be a post-war homecoming but a pre-war model.

S. S. A.

THE STOUT Student Association officers are elected annually by the student body. Their chief duties are to plan the homecoming activities, to regulate activities of student organizations by maintaining a weekly and yearly calendar, and to discuss student problems.

At the beginning of the past year, the officers held regular meetings with class representatives for the purpose of revising sections of the Student Handbook. One result of those meetings was the formation of the Student Governing Board. Two representatives from each class and the SSA officers form the membership of the Board. The group meets with a faculty advisory committee to discuss student problems and questions may be brought to the college administration.

Despite many difficulties, we sponsored a homecoming similar to our first war-time homecoming. After considerable planning, and with the cooperation of the student body, we revived the tradition of having a bonfire, a snake-dance, and a presentation of the homecoming queens at the fair-grounds.

Again, the pre-war mid-winter formal was out of the question; to substitute for this event, the SSA sponsored a Mid-Year Mixer at the beginning of the second semester.

The all-school Christmas dance was very successful. Committees from each of the four classes took charge of decorations, entertainment, refreshments, and publicity. The big attractions for the evening were Frankie Ross' Orchestra and the Freshman floor show.

In every way the past year has been a successful one for the SSA.

TWO IMPORTANT new ideas were successful in Tainter Hall this year: the all-sophomore dormitory and student government. At the beginning of the first semester, Miss Phillips and three girls graded the residents excellent, good, average, fair, or poor on eight points: room appearance, personal appearance, voice, speech, emotional control, ability to get along with people, integrity, and leadership. Development in each quality was placed under the chairmanship of the girl who had received the highest rank in it; she conferred with the girls and helped them to improve.

From the group receiving the highest total scores, the officers of the Hall were elected: Ruth Klinner, president; Patricia Telford, vice-president; Marjorie Manz, secretary; and Jeanne Kane, treasurer. At the beginning of the second semester new grades were recorded. Twice a month the girls held housemeetings to discuss and settle problems, and to plan activities. Some results of these meetings are: proctors to hush the night owls after 10:30, the fiery "Plug" sign to remind the girls to disconnect the flat iron plug, penalties inflicted on lawbreakers, open-house Sunday, participation in the inter-dorm party, and — oh, yes, — the formal party. These memories are unforgettable, too: the girls' dates, noon-day letters, special deliveries, long-distance calls, week-end washings, Sunday morning sleep, and the essential studies — experiences shared by all twenty-two of the girls in Tainter Hall.

NEVER a dull moment — that's life at the Annex. We fledgling freshmen, new at first to dorm life, have had a never-to-be-forgotten year under its roof. Only a few of the memories, funny and otherwise: running to the dining room those cold, cold January nights (somehow we could stand the cold down in the trunk room) — the shared excitement of those long-distance telephone calls — the nocturnal prowling of the mice through the wastebaskets — rushing to get the mail, hoping for a letter from home or from that G.I. whose picture held the place of honor in our rooms, and whose insignia decorated the bulletin boards — that certain creak in the stairs between second and third floors — all the oh's and ah's over a newly-acquired diamond — the ever-present "Back Home for Keeps" pictures in each room — those ambitious exercisers who did their "nightly dozen", invariably to the tune of "Accentuate the Positive" — the spic and span look of our rooms at the Homecoming open house, which slowly wore off — the Inter-Dorm party and the hilarious Annex skit, with its frantic search for "One Meatball", not to mention the Cheerleaders flung at the unsuspecting audience — several guests, since we can't forget Elmer, or Eric, or Bertha Ann — quiet hours, and the many "Do Not Disturb" signs that were hung in vain — and many other memories, some important and some that weren't — all these were a part of our year at Tainter Annex.

LYNWOOD HALL

WE OF Lynwood Hall had a good year. Of course, there were the regular war-time shortages, and the fact that we had to learn to come in at the designated time, besides the long and heated house meetings that straightened most of our troubles out. There were few men in the vestibule, but we had our good things — long distance calls — some were disappointing, but more were wonderful — late parties in our rooms, a chicken dinner packed at home, a lug of grapes, Miss Anderson who was more like a fellow student than a house mother, the Christmas party — Audrey Bystrom had a hard time making the soapsuds on the tree look like snow, — and the poems on the exchanged gifts will not be remembered for their form, but they were most expressive. There were also the engagement rings. Our open house in the fall brought most of the students to Lynwood for an afternoon. We are not sure how much the audience enjoyed our showing of "A Bride's Trousseau" at the inter-dorm party, but we certainly had a riotous time creating our fantastic costumes. A sheet-draped Jimmie as bride and a bewildered Nicky as the groom were a sight not soon to be forgotten. Polly in her all-purpose ski boots and formal was quite charming, while the red wool tights for swimming on cold mornings stole the show.

All of Lynwood revolves around the "wreck" room. It is seldom unoccupied by bridge players, knitters, or those dancing, reading, writing letters, talking, even studying. All this life may seem of little importance at the time, but as soon as we are away, we think of the girls at Lynwood.
